

The Farina Restoration Group has been at work restoring the structure and presenting the history of the abandoned township of Farina, SA, with annual work programs since 2009. We have involved 300 volunteers and inputted in excess of 30,000 volunteer hours to the project.

The program is now ongoing, with structure and resources in place to enable this to happen

With the involvement of the volunteers together with assistance of Secondary School and indigenous work experience students, the Group will provide interest, training and awareness to all visitors to the area, whilst ensuring that the knowledge of this important part of Australia's outback is perpetuated.

Our yearly program requires significant costs, which we raise through every means available to us.

One very important means is via tax-deductible donations through an account with the Foundation for Rural and Regional Renewal (FRRR) who provide all donors with a tax-deductible receipt

You can be part of this exciting and groundbreaking project by making a tax-deductible donation, large or small. Every dollar will be used to enhance the Farina Restoration Group's ability to research and tell the story of Farina as a vibrant inland service town from the 1870's to the 1960's and thus ensure that this part of our Australian outback history is made visible to all who visit the area to appreciate the importance of this outback town in years gone by.

Thank you for your support.
